Chapter 3: The Map (1930s–1960s)

The federal maps shade the West Side red. The banks won't lend here, the insurers won't write here, and the only way to buy a house is on contract. Families start reading their contracts together.

Setup

Set up the base game as usual, with these changes. Swap the Housing and Lending deal decks for this envelope's era decks (the cards with “The Map” backs; print the backs on the reverse so era deals never mix into the base deck). Start Housing and Lending at Pressure 2: REDLINING is active from round 1. Slide the Appraiser face-down under the board as the Owner (skip the Owner shuffle). Ignore the scenario deck. If the last chapter was lost, the community rallies: everyone starts with +1 Trust and one free Commons action.

The twist

REDLINING is active from round 1, and from round 2, while it stays active, the map compounds: it tightens a second time every round (+1 Pressure on the weaker of Housing and Lending). Break it, or it breaks you.

The League

Like the Contract Buyers League (Chicago, 1968): sign the pledge to withhold together (an action). Every family must sign in the same round, or the sellers scare them off and the pledges fall apart. Once it forms: Housing Pressure −2 at once, Housing −1 every second round after, and every Housing and Lending trap can be negotiated with Sight 1. The League card goes on the board when it forms.

The Owner's face

The Appraiser: leans on your strongest unfinished district every round (+1 Pressure); on reveal, knocks one woken district back to Clarity 1.

Ending the chapter

Win or lose, fill in the Family Ledger (next page): win +2 and +1 per awake district; lose −2 and −1 per captured district; each Fall −1 and each Reach +1. Awake districts heal a Scar or take a Rebuilt sticker; captured districts take a Scarred sticker (at most 2 per district). The History card “The Redlining Maps” is unlocked; “The Contract Buyers League” is unlocked only if the League formed and the family won.

Family Decision

Stay and fight for the house, or move to where the map says you can? Stay: Housing keeps its sticker, and the Organizer gains +1 Legend per League signature in Chapter 4. Move: remove one Scar from Housing, but the Elder role skips a generation.

Balance-tested with computer players at 2–5 players: about 50% family wins at every table size. Organizing matters: the same players who never sign the League win far less often (as low as 19%).

THE LEAGUE Chapter 3

The Contract Buyers League

Like the Contract Buyers League (Chicago, 1968): sign the pledge to withhold together (an action). Every family must sign in the same round, or the sellers scare them off and the pledges fall apart. Once it forms: Housing Pressure −2 at once, Housing −1 every second round after, and every Housing and Lending trap can be negotiated with Sight 1.

THE OWNER hidden

The Appraiser

The Appraiser: leans on your strongest unfinished district every round (+1 Pressure); on reveal, knocks one woken district back to Clarity 1.

This chapter's Owner. Slide it face-down under the board instead of shuffling the Owners.

THE TWIST Chapter 3

The Map Compounds

REDLINING is active from round 1, and from round 2, while it stays active, the map compounds: it tightens a second time every round (+1 Pressure on the weaker of Housing and Lending). Break it, or it breaks you.

FAMILY DECISION after the chapter

Stay or Move?

Stay and fight for the house, or move to where the map says you can? Stay: Housing keeps its sticker, and the Organizer gains +1 Legend per League signature in Chapter 4. Move: remove one Scar from Housing, but the Elder role skips a generation.

THE COMMUNITY RALLIES after a loss

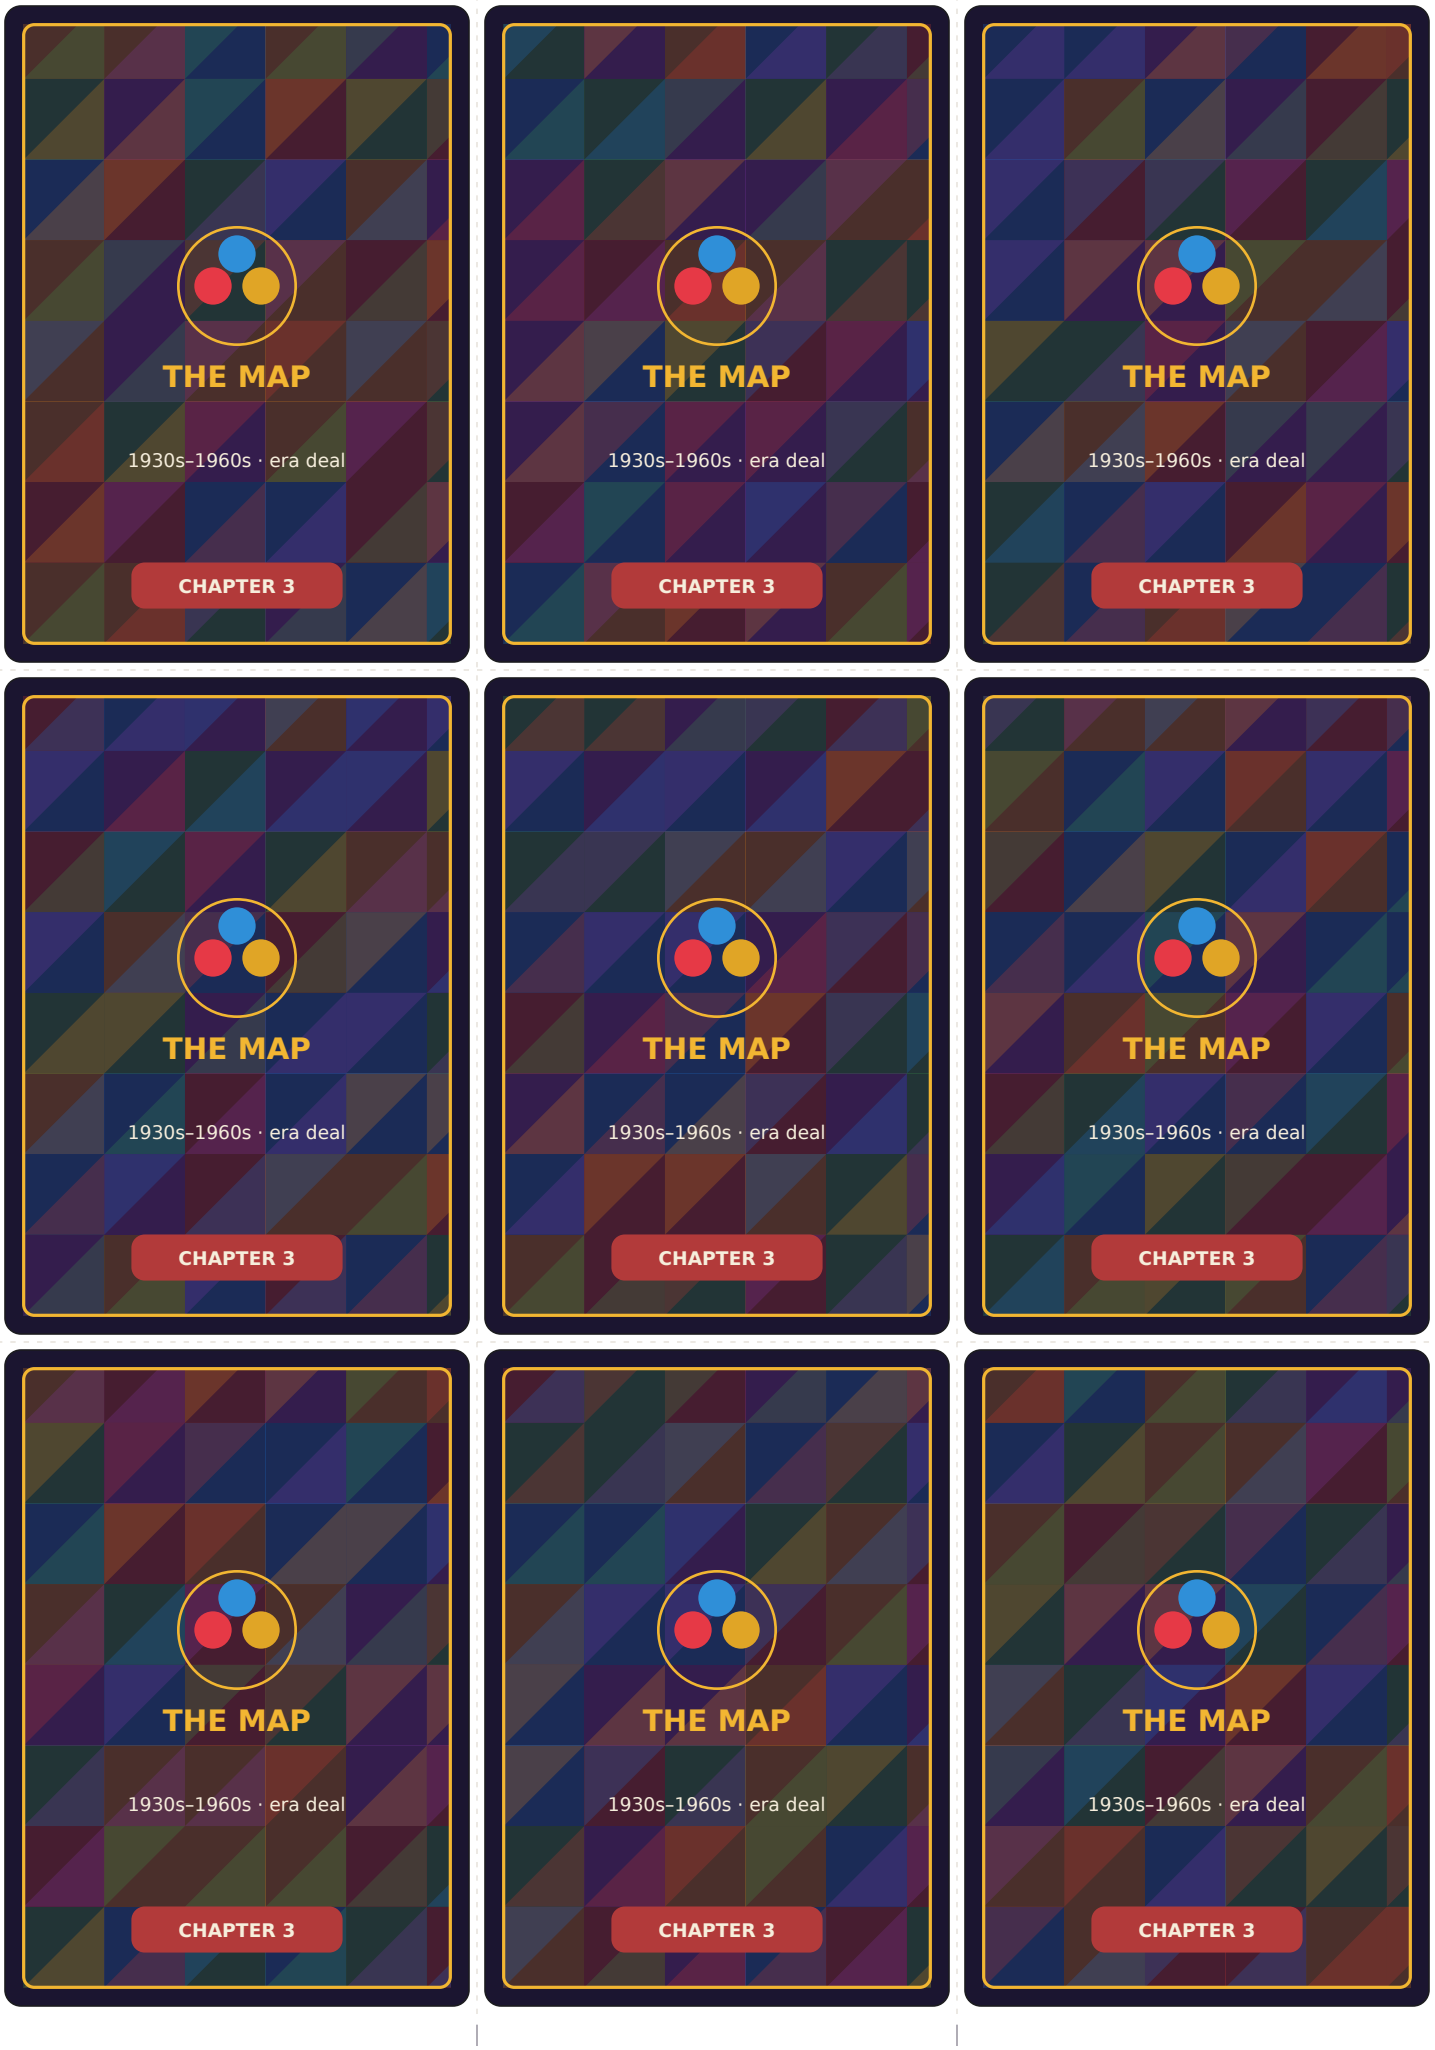

The Block Shows Up

If the last chapter was lost: everyone starts this chapter with +1 Trust and one free Commons action. The church, the club and the neighbors show up.

LEDGER reference

Scoring the Chapter

Win +2, +1 per awake district. Lose −2, −1 per captured district. Each Fall −1, each Reach +1. Awake: heal a Scar, else Rebuilt. Captured: Scarred. Max 2 stickers per district.
